

New name: Syneco becomes Menerga

Swiss distributor of air conditioning technology changes its name and consolidates a long-standing partnership with German Menerga GmbH.

(Solothurn, 15 May 2020) Swiss Syneco GmbH, an air conditioning and ventilation technology company for air handling units (AHUs), has changed its name to Menerga GmbH as of May 1, 2020. The company has been a partner of Germany's Menerga GmbH, based in Mülheim an der Ruhr, for the past 18 years and became part of the Systemair Group in 2018. With its new name, the Solothurn-based company is strengthening its close connection to its German partner, an international specialist for air conditioning and ventilation systems.

"Syneco, which started out as Mani & Fink AG, has 40 years' experience in the market and over 4,000 installed systems. We are taking the next step in our future growth strategy in Switzerland with this change of name. Thanks to our long-standing partnership and synergies with Menerga in Germany, we will continue creating great added value for our customers", said Andreas Mani, managing director of the Swiss Menerga. "We are proud to be part of Menerga, the first company in this industry to be fully committed to energy efficiency and environmental protection since it was founded in 1980."

The change in name and visual identity will not affect the company's customers and the 23 employees in Solothurn and Lausanne. The company will continue to provide consulting services, optimization, maintenance and remote monitoring of AHUs, with the focus remaining client satisfaction. "Our knowledge of local business needs and our professional services are and will remain the basis for constructive cooperation with the whole value chain, from system planners and installers to owners and operators of these systems," said Head of Sales Silvio Kellenberger.
